

FALL STYLE IN CLOAKS.

The Havelock and Improved Newmarket Most Popular.

Special correspondence of The Florida Star.

New York, Oct. 23.—As the season advances the styles in cloaks become more solidly settled and those not much liked are laid by for those most affected. Among the newest is the Havelock, and one also sees many of the perfected Newmarkets and the long coat called sometimes pelisse and again known as the redingote. These are made so long that they cover the dress completely and are thus worth much to those who like to make a great display on little. The coat being so fine and so long, it is quite a possible thing to wear one's oldest dresses and still have the name of being right up to date. These long coats, to speak seriously of them, are very handsome and are made of velvet heavily embroidered or of fine broadcloth. Some are of brocades and satin duchesse, while some of them are trimmed with spangles, chiffon, and in fact all that is rich and elegant is seen on them. Furs are there also, and yet the most stylish of them all are those made of fine broadcloth and with no garniture save stitching. But there is enough of this to save the garment from being called plain. This shape is like a princess dress in all but the fact that it is open down the front. Some of them button, and again others are open from the waist down. One thing I note, and that is the tendency toward the short empire waist not only in these coats, but in many elegant gowns for grand functions to take place during the next few weeks. Many of the three-quarter coats have what one might call yokes, and they are just as long as the usual empire waist.

The box coats and the shaped three-quarter coats are very much liked and before long will have displaced the short reefer shapes. There are some Louis XIV styles, but they are all made of the most elegant and expensive stuff, like Lyons velvet. They have large revers and fine lace jabots and look like those in vogue during the reign of that ill fated monarch. After them come the automobile coats, and they are so designed that they can be worn in the street also. Box shapes are quite well liked, and one sees many of them, but the newest is the plaid Havelock. There are Havelocks of plain goods, but the plaid is considered a little more chic than the plain. In the illustration the wrap has straps of plain stuff stitched on in several rows. The principal thing about these is the cape effect which forms sleeves. The whole is very well liked just now. It is pretty in plain goods.

A new fancy is to have striped velvet for a whole dress. Black and white are the best form. The stripes are from an eighth of an inch wide to half an inch. Plain brocade is not good enough for the women of the day, and for them are brocades where the figure is of embossed velvet on a satin ground. It is indescribably rich and sumptuous. Gold threads are woven in some of them, and others have the whole pattern outlined with gold thread.

I think I never saw so much gold and silver thread woven into fabrics as now, and in many cases the whole fabric is of gold woven like cloth. Belts and braids are of this metal and so many minor things that no one could mention half. Black and gold are seen everywhere on everything, and it is a sort of cult to have black and gold. The factories at Paterson and elsewhere are running hard to supply all the demand for gold ribbon and gold passementerie and other things calculated to make woman more and more precious. It is true that in this instance all is not gold that glitters, but what of that if it only looks all right and shines? Silver may be an issue in other matters, but in this it is 10 to 1 that the average woman is satisfied with the gold and would prefer it 10 times over to silver. Gold braid is used so universally that it will tire the very ones who now wear it, for it is not a standard thing. Black and gold trimming could not be more popular than it is now, but soon it will have had its day, and then furs will have taken its place.

The woolen fabrics for street gowns grow more and more rough surfaced all the time. I saw some regular honeycomb stuff so thick that it looked cumbersome, but it is "stylish," a word which covers a multitude of sins. Serge in a coarse weave is one of the newest, and this, with a new weave of camel's hair all covered with white hairs, is to be much affected for tailor suits. Another hairy stuff is called zebra cloth, and this has the hair longer and more of it. The colors in this are all faint anyhow and, being shrouded by the white hairs, seem nearly white at the first glance. There is also a basket cloth woven in deep squares, and this, too, is covered with hairs, which stand out from the surface.

NOTICE OF ELECTION.

Whereas, The legislature of 1898, under the constitution of 1885, of the state of Florida, did pass four joint resolutions proposing amendments to the constitution of the state of Florida, and the same were agreed to by a vote of three-fifths of all the members elected to each house; that the vote on said joint resolutions were entered upon their respective journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and they did determine and direct that the said joint resolutions be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election in November, 1900.

Now, therefore, I, Jno. L. Crawford, secretary of state, of the state of Florida, do hereby give notice that a will be held in each county in Florida on Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in November, A. D. 1900, the said Tuesday being the

for the ratification or rejection of the said joint resolutions proposing amendments to the constitution of the state of Florida, viz:

Article XV.

That the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Florida be and the same is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election A. D. 1900 for ratification or rejection:

Section 4, Article VII, of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 4. Where any senatorial district is composed of two or more counties, the counties of which such district consists shall not be entirely separated by any county belonging to another district. Any new county that may be created shall be entitled to one member in the house of representatives, in excess of the limit prescribed in section 2 of this article until the apportionment following next thereafter, and shall be assigned when created to one of the adjoining senatorial districts as shall be determined by the legislature.

Article XVI.

That the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Florida be and is hereby agreed to, and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1900, for ratification or rejection:

Section 25 of Article III of said constitution be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 25. The legislature shall provide by general law for incorporating such educational, agricultural, mechanical, mining, transportation, mercantile and other useful companies or associations as may be deemed necessary; but it shall not pass any special law on any such subject, and any such special law shall be of no effect; provided, however, that nothing herein shall preclude special legislation as to a university or the public schools, or as to a ship canal across the state.

Article XVII.

That the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Florida be and the same is hereby agreed to, and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election in November, A. D. 1900, for ratification or rejection:

Section 5 of Article VIII of the constitution shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 5. Immediately upon the ratification of this amendment the county commissioners of the several counties of this state shall divide their respective counties into five commissioner's districts, to be numbered respectively from one to five, inclusive, and each district shall be, as nearly as possible, equal in proportion to population, and thereafter there shall be in each of such districts a county commissioner who shall be elected by the qualified electors of said county at the time and place of voting for other county officers, and shall hold his office for two years. The powers, duties and compensation of such county commissioners shall be prescribed by law; provided, that nothing herein shall effect the terms of commissioners holding office at the time of such division; provided, further, that all vacancies occurring by limitations of terms, or from death, resignation, or otherwise, before the election of 1902, shall be filled by appointment by the governor as now provided by law.

Article XVIII.

That the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Florida be and the same is hereby agreed to, and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election in November, A. D. 1900, for ratification or rejection:

Section 12 of Article XVI of the constitution of the state of Florida is amended to read as follows:

Section 12. The present seal of the state shall remain the seal of the state of Florida. The state flag shall be of the following proportions and description: Depth to be three-fourths length of fly. The seal of the state of diameter one-third the fly, in the center of a white ground, red bars, in width one-eighth the length of fly extending from each corner toward the center to the outer rim of the seal.

The votes cast in compliance with said proposed amendments, and the canvass, declarations and returns thereof, shall be subjected to the same regulations and restrictions as are provided by law for general elections in the state of Florida.

In testimony whereof I have hereto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the state of Florida, at Tallahassee, the capital, this the first day of August, A. D. 1900.

JOHN L. CRAWFORD, Secretary of State.
